News and Events of the LIN Center for Community Development

International Volunteer Day 5/12 – A community of Volunteers

LIN team and volunteers participate in IVD Event

It was an action packed Sunday morning at Saigon Pearl International School on 5 December as over three-hundred volunteers and would-be volunteers gathered together in honor of International Volunteer Day (IVD). The school's basement auditorium was packed with representatives and volunteers working with fifteen HCMC not-for-profit organizations (NPOs), who set up exhibition booths, led volunteers in games and encouraged experience sharing to promote volunteerism in Vietnam.

"Our event today honors all those who have been or who would like to be volunteers. I am impressed at the effort of local NPOs to make this a meaningful event," said Son Pham at LIN Center for Community Development, one of the event co-hosts and coordinator. He went on to explain that the celebration provided an opportunity for NPOs of various backgrounds and experiences to work together. Members of different organizations were put into four groups to prepare for the event which helped to strengthen relationships across organizations.

Interest in the event was greater than anticipated and the number of participating NPOs went from three to twelve and finally to seventeen. During the three-hour celebration, volunteers participated in team building games, such as one challenge to build the highest tower of people; while others took the stage to share their volunteer experiences. Among the highlights of the program was the exchange of souvenirs among participating NPOs and volunteers acknowledging their commitment to community service by signing the event's giant poster.

Among the three-hundred participants present were a dozen foreign volunteers and mid-level professionals. Some people said that they came to interact with other volunteers, others wanted to learn more about volunteerism or sign-up to volunteer.

Although the event was deemed a success, the committee recognized room for improvement. Some volunteers recommended that a future event last longer. Ms. Nguyen Thi Thu Ha, a volunteer for Disability Resource and Development, and the event MC, suggested that each NPO take the stage and introduce their work.

She added, "I hope that the event next year would... permit more time for us to get to know the NPOs and volunteers better."

The International Volunteer Day for Economic and Social Development (IVD) was adopted by the United Nations General Assembly on 17 December 1985. Since then, governments, the UN system and civil society organizations have successfully joined volunteers around the world to celebrate the Day on 5 December.

International Volunteer Day is a day for volunteers from all walks of life working in communities around the globe. IVD offers an opportunity for volunteer organizations and individual volunteers to make visible their contributions - at local, national and international levels - to the achievement of the Millennium Development Goals.

LIN Center would like to wish a Happy Birthday to LIN's friend and Advisory Board Member, Mr. Doan Manh Kham.

RMIT's Career Fair is an annual event organized at RMIT International University Vietnam's District 7 campus in Ho Chi Minh City. This year, the event attracted over 2,200 RMIT students and alumnae. Over XX companies joined the fair by setting up booths and sending representatives. ### Auditing and Accounting Support for NPO Partners

Does your NPO want to attract larger grants? Is your NPO looking to raise funds from international organizations? If so, you will likely be asked to provide financial statements and, increasingly, audited financial statements. Sometimes these statements are even requested before a grant can be made.

With support from Irish Aid, the LIN Center for Community Development is preparing a special capacity building program on “The Preparation of Audited Financial Statements”. The training will be conducted by a professional, international standard auditing company in HCMC. The proposed training topics include:

- Understanding the main components of NPO financial statements
- Accounting for Contributions
- Accounting for Expenses
- Dealing with assets and depreciation
- Comparative information (year-by-year)
- Working with Independent Auditors
- Best practises in NPO financial management

Space is limited. If your organization is interested in joining this training course, please contact the LIN team at: npo@LINvn.org or \(84 8\) 3824-60913824-6091).

Donor's Corner

Respect for Donor Intent

Earlier this month, I participated in a course on Ethics and Laws for Nonprofits offered by NYU's School for Continuing and Professional Studies. While the class was geared towards not-for-profit professionals operating in New York State, there was much to be learned and applied to not-for-profits any where in the world. And, among the many takeaways from this class, I wanted to share with you some thoughts on the important issue of donor intent.

In the past, you may have read about high-profile disputes concerning donor intent. For example, in the aftermath of 9/11, the Red Cross was found to be allocating some of its relief funds to other programs. In 2009, KIVA, a not-for-profit microfinance organization, was caught up in accusations that it misrepresented the direct relationship between donors and loan recipients. More recently, several private, universities such as Princeton, were taken to court over perceived changes to the original terms of an endowment.

In many of these cases, the problem could have been avoided with better communication. In some cases, the NPO never consulted the donor before changing the terms of their gift. In other cases, the information provided was incomplete or ambiguous. In an effort to avoid such conflicts, a donor could benefit from knowing his/her rights and establishing expectations. For this purpose, I copied below a donor's bill of rights, drafted by the Association of Fundraising Professionals<sup>1</sup>:

1. To be informed of the organization's mission, the way the organization intends to use donated resources, and of its capacity to use donations effectively for their intended purposes.
2. To be informed of the identity of those serving on the organization's governing board, and to expect the board to exercise prudent judgment in its stewardship responsibilities.
3. Access to the organization's most recent financial statements.
4. Assurance that gifts will be used for the purposes for which they were given.
5. To receive appropriate acknowledgement and recognition.
6. To be assured that information about their donation is handled with respect and with confidentiality to the extent provided by law.
7. To expect that all relationships with individuals representing organizations of interest to the donor will be professional in nature.
8. To be informed whether those seeking donations are volunteers, employees of the organization or hired solicitors.
9. To have the opportunity for their names to be deleted from mailing lists that an organization may intend to share.
10. To feel free to ask questions when making a donation and to receive a prompt, truthful and forthright answer.

Holiday Giving

It's getting closer to that time of the year in Vietnam, when people start thinking about the upcoming Tet holiday and many are looking for ways to support those who are less fortunate in their community. In this act, many donors are concerned about making a difference and want to ensure that their hard earned contributions are allocated where it will do the most good.

Here at the LIN Center for Community Development, we tend to take the long-term approach. We are working with local not-for-profit organizations that want to improve their programs. We work to promote transparency, best not-for-profit management practices and accountability. At LIN, we encourage prospective donors to look at the organizations that are addressing a cause that concerns them and to ask the staff some questions about their mission before making a decision to give. For example, you might ask:

- What does the organization aim to achieve?
- How do they go about achieving that change – what programs and activities are employed to make this happen?
- How will the organization know if it is achieving its goals?

Consider reaching out to one or more of LIN's current NPO partners, listed below by thematic area, and asking for further information about the organization and programs.

New Report Analyzes Data on Urban Poverty in Ha Noi and HCMC

A new survey assessing urban poverty in Ha Noi and Ho Chi Minh City was distributed on December 15, 2010. Data from the survey, which was supported by UNDP, clearly shows that while the two cities enjoyed tremendous economic growth, this growth has not benefited all residents. People living in the two cities face inequalities in living standards and access to services, such as education and health care.

Opportunities for NPOs

SIFE RMIT WANTS TO RECYCLE YOUR OLD BANNERS

The SIFE Team RMIT (<http://www.sife.org/Pages/Default.aspx>), a not-for-profit network of university students, academic professionals and industry leaders contributing their talents to help the community introduces a new project to recycle your used signs and banners

Once collected, your used signs and banners will be transported to a site where they will be recycled into bags, which can be sold in the marketplace. The entire process will be monitored by SIFE RMIT members. The project represents an effort by RMIT students in general and the RMIT SIFE team in particular to protect the environment and contribute to sustainable development in HCMC. They would like to do something about the large amount of waste coming from banners and other forms of advertising while also persuading people to purchase bags made of recycled materials.

The project was successfully introduced in Hanoi by the RMIT SIFE team in Hanoi. This is the foundation for the RMIT SIFE team in Ho Chi Minh City to introduce the project here in the South. So, please consider donating your used signs and banners to the RMIT SIFE team HCMC by contacting Ms. Hoang Bao Chau, president of RMIT SIFE SGS, at site.rmitvn@gmail.com or 0938-810-939.
