JUDITH CAREY ZESIGER FAMILY FOUNDATION

To recognize the important work of volunteers who are making a difference in our communities, the LIN Center for Community Development, with backing from the Judith Carey Zesiger Family Foundation, is delighted to announce the launch of our 2011 Volunteer Stories Competition.

All volunteers and volunteer host organizations, nationwide, are eligible to submit their stories in the form of a written essay, photo, and/or short video documentary. Through this year's theme, "The Power of Sharing", the competition aims to highlight the positive impact volunteers are having in our community. Volunteers share their resources, their time, their expertise, their skillsets, their experiences and/or their high energy. In this competition, we encourage them to take one step further - to share their story. Besides "Best of the week" prizes, this year's prize categories includes most inspirational story, most committed story, most nurturing volunteer, and the best example of pro bono volunteer service - how a volunteer applied their professional skills and/or experiences to support a not-for-profit organization in their community.

"Due to the positive feedback and success of the first Volunteer Stories Competition, which took place in 2010, LIN decided to launch the competition a second time around. It is our hope that this year's competition will reach a larger number of volunteers, in order to represent the diversity in background, geography and level of commitment of volunteers. We also hope to raise greater awareness to the skilled volunteers that are working to build long-term capacity for not-for-profit organizations in Vietnam. While the skilled volunteer model is new to Vietnam, we hope that first-hand examples will help bring to light the important role that skilled volunteers can play in community development," said Ms. Nguyen Thi Thanh Truc, LIN's Volunteer Coordinator and head of the Volunteer Stories competition.

Volunteers and Volunteer Host Organizations that submit a story will be eligible to win one of several attractive prizes (up to VND 10 million). This is made possible thanks to the generous support of our sponsors: the Judith Carey Zesiger Family Foundation, SRI Vietnam, UNV Program, Megastar Cineplex, Emerald Digital Marketing and MobiVi.

To celebrate the practice of giving in Vietnam and to leverage the contribution volunteers make in their community, the LIN Center designed an awards scheme that allows winners to keep half of the prize money and give the other half to the NPO of their choosing.

All submissions should be emailed to cctn@linvn.org no later than November 6th, 2011.

3rd Meeting of LIN's NPO Advisory Group

Understanding the roles of local NPOs/NGOs, realizing their challenges and finding solutions and opportunities for improvement was the main topic of the third meeting of LIN's NPO Advisory Group, which took place on the 21st of September with support from Irish Aid and Xu Corporation.

16 participants joined the meeting to discuss and learn about the characteristics and challenges of NPOs based on a meeting the LIN team attended in Hanoi last month. Among the challenges discussed, members of the Advisory Group agreed that NPOs need to be more strategic, they need to connect and coordinate with other NPOs and stakeholders and they need to professionalize their services to become more effective.

In an effort to support our NPO partners in the process of improvement, LIN Center proposed the idea of building a self-assessment tool that NPOs can use to realize their strengths and weaknesses and prioritize areas for improvement. After conducting an organizational capacity assessment on our own operation, using an overseas tool, LIN came up with the idea to create an assessment tool that was adapted to the situation and experience of NPOs in Vietnam. With support from Ms. Gail Nordheim, a past LIN Volunteer and professional NGO Consultant, we proposed a tool that would address 15 key components that contribute to the making of an effective NPO, from strategic planning to organizational management and fiscal procedures. The proposed tool would help organizations to evaluate themselves and identify areas of strength and weakness. It would also help organizations to prioritize areas for improvement. In addition, the tool could help sponsors to better understand the organizations they support, or may support. It could help the sponsor to make funding decisions and/or identify opportunities to provide the organization with technical assistance.

Initially, the tool would be used by NPOs to evaluate their own organization. Later, they could hire an independent evaluator to conduct the assessment. Down the road, it may be beneficial to create a certification program, conducted by an independent auditor, to help NPOs understand how they compare with their peer organizations and to inform sponsors about the capacity of organizations they may wish to support.

The NPO Advisory Group welcomed the proposal and the majority even volunteered to join the project advisory committee, which would include representatives of NPOs, donors and regulators or strategic partners. LIN explained to our partners that we are in the process of raising awareness and building support to turn this proposal into a project for 2012.

If you or someone you know would like to join the project advisory committee, or if you have sample tools or suggestions, please contact us via email at: npo@LINvn.org At the conclusion of the meeting, the group discussed LIN's last grant opportunity for 2011, which focuses on the needs of migrant workers in and around HCMC. NPOs may apply for up to 80 million VND, compared with 27 million in previous rounds. (Please refer to grant opportunities on page 6 of this newsletter for further details.)

Donor's Corner

LIN Launches NETWORKING FOR A CAUSE Event #1: Combating Human Trafficking in Vietnam

On 14 September, the LIN Center organized the first community speaker series - Networking For A Cause, at L'uisine, to offer a Vietnam perspective on the global issue of Human Trafficking. Over 60 people attended the event from local and foreign companies, local and international nonprofits - representing the diversity of the HCMC community.

Ms. To Ngoc Minh Suong, HCMC representative for the Pacific Links Foundation (PALS) began her presentation by asking guests to consider three True/False questions about human trafficking in Vietnam. During the discussion, some guests were surprised to learn that most perpetrators are not strangers, that people who immigrate legally can also be victims of human trafficking and that improved education helps individuals to escape traps that are set by traffickers.

Ms. Suong described the three-pronged approach her organization employs to combat human trafficking in Vietnam: (1) Prevention: offer scholarships, vocational training and job placement services; (2) Protection: two shelters for survivors - near Vietnam's Southern border with Cambodia and its northern border with China, as well as comprehensive reintegration support; (3) Raising Awareness: providing training and education to members of the community.

Ms. Lily Le, representing Mast Industries, which contracts the production of well-known clothing brands in Vietnam, shared why her company became involved in this issue and a supporter of the PALS ADAPT program. Firstly, the company determined that young women ought to be the target beneficiary for its community investment strategy. In addition, the company sought to identify a partner organization that offered a compelling program with long-term, positive impact on young women. As an added bonus, the Mast Industries staff liked the opportunities ADAPT provided for them to engage and thereby improve their own soft skills (such as leadership, communication and presentation).

The N4C ticket price covers venue rental, food and beverages with any remaining funds allocated to the nonprofit organization highlighted at each event. Additional expenses were covered by Irish Aid with in-kind donations from L'uisine, Out-2 Studio and Alim Manji & Samantha Yau. Including funds raised through the raffle and guest contributions, LIN was able to donate just over VND 3 million VND to PALS.

Networking for a Cause (N4C) is an initiative of the LIN Center for Community Development designed to connect socially-responsible businesspeople with community development practitioners for informal conversations on important topics. N4C events are designed to be open and interactive sessions, with plenty of time for Q&A and networking. Stay tuned for details about the next N4C event, planned for mid-November...

CSIP Selects LIN's Philanthropy Advisory Service Start-Up Level: 2011 Social Entrepreneurs Support Program

After a competitive selection process, involving an application and panel interview, the Centre for Social Initiatives Promotion (CSIP) selected LIN's Philanthropy Advisory Service, proposed by Dana RH Doan - LIN Consultant and Advisory Member, as a recipient of Start-up Level Support in its 2011 Social Entrepreneurs Support Program.

"We are thrilled that Dana will be a part of this year's fellowship program, which offers resources, training and other opportunities designed to develop our Philanthropy Advisory Service (PAS)," said Mr. Pham Truong Son, LIN's Deputy Director. "Her participation will help to ensure that PAS will contribute to making positive change for the sustainable development of Vietnam in the future."

PAS, available to individuals, corporations and foundations, seeks to empower donors with knowledge, skills, and resources that will help them deliver positive change to Vietnam's economy, society, and environment through strategic philanthropic engagement. We have set the following objectives for PAS next twelve months:

- Customized Advisory Services – Core services include grantmaking and corporate volunteer program advisory. Additional, "add-on", services include: site visit facilitation, project monitoring, PR support and fiscal sponsorship.
- Capacity Building – LIN seeks to provide information and promote exchange for and among the donor community. To do this, we plan to offer facilitated field trips to NPOs as well as networking events/peer exchanges to learn about local and global best practices in philanthropy.
- Information Sharing – LIN will design and disseminate an electronic newsletter to inform and inspire individual and corporate philanthropists through examples, case studies, tips and resources. IN addition, we hope to expand our HCMC Grantmakers Directory that was circulated in early 2011.

CSIP is a Vietnamese non-governmental and non-profit organization, which supports social entrepreneurs (SEs) in their early stages and helps to mobilize the participation of State agencies, enterprises, and surrounding communities with the hope of further development of social entrepreneurship in Vietnam. CSIP supports SEs by investing directly in their early stages of development and encourage the participation of different stakeholders in promoting the development of SEs and Social Entrepreneurship in Vietnam.

CSIP's Social Entrepreneurs Support Program provides SEs with seed money, technical support, communication, networking and legal information assistance. Since 2009, CSIP has supported 27 social entrepreneurs representing 19 social entrepreneurship initiatives addressing a range of social and environmental issues across the country.

The Vision Statement

An Excerpt from Richard Male & Associates

<http://richardmale.com/?p=516>

The inspirational foundation of a nonprofit organization rests on its vision. Most not-for-profit organizations grow from the vision of a single person or a small group of like-minded individuals who want to create a better world, develop stronger communities, address an environmental concern, improve access to healthcare, introduce educational initiative, etc.

While the vision and mission statement are interconnected, the vision is truly the starting point and is set by an organization's founders who come together to improve conditions somewhere in the greater community. The challenge is to turn the vision into a collective objective in order to get community buy-in, to secure financial and volunteer support, and to establish credibility so that the organization can create a mission statement that will provide an operational structure for the organization to grow.

Whether you are just starting an organization or are joining an established one, there are a few things to keep in mind in terms of visioning:

1. Involve your leadership team (which may include staff and selected volunteers) in the following exercise to refine and articulate your vision:

Picture your organization five years in the future. You have all just arrived at work and are getting ready to start the day. The major newspaper in your area has done a feature story on your organization and when the paper arrives at your door you discover that the story is on the front page. What does the headline read? Think in terms of actual headlines and try to come up with a quick, one or two line broad vision (headline) that reflects the organization's values.

2. Ownership of the vision must be shared with the leadership and sold to the support staff, volunteers and community.
3. Assuming you are not one of the original founders, you should seek out and talk to the founders, if possible, in order to gain historical perspective on the origins of your organization. Review the early history, any available documents, meeting minutes, marketing materials etc. Has the vision remained the same or has it evolved over time?

Staying connected to the vision is essential in order to stay grounded and maintain the organizational integrity, credibility and values from which the organization grew.

Check out next month's NPO Resource Section for an explanation and tips on drafting or enhancing your organization's mission statement.

5 Tips for a Healthy, Happy Partnership

By: Katya Andresen, Katya's Nonprofit Marketing Blog
http://www.nonprofitmarketingblog.com/site/5\_tips\_for\_a\_healthy\_happy\_partnership/

Are you considering a partnership with a company or nonprofit?

Consider these tips for a happy healthy partnership.

1. FIT: Partner around mutual benefits or you won't be partnering at all. Partnerships should yield clear wins for each partner and most important, a shared or complementary customer base.

2. SUITABILITY: In thinking about partners, instead of asking who is like us, ask who wins when we win. Don't rule out potential partners who have different motivations for wanting the same success. We don't need to share a mission to have a suitable fit.

3. SHARED AGENDA: Look for partners with a compatible agenda with respect to our audience and the potential for both parties to gain philanthropic fulfillment, financial benefits, enhanced image or expertise, access to new markets or marketing resources, greater efficiency, new products or services, competitive advantage or increased employee morale.

4. REALITY: Know that no partnership is perfect. The bottom line is to go into the partnership with open eyes, more positives than negatives, and a plan for compensating for weaknesses within the alliance. Shared, realistic expectations and a common vision for the degree of collaboration can go a long way to establishing and preserving a successful partnership.

5. COMMITMENT: Inevitably, the partnership will change over time, and one partner may perceive diminishing value. Effective partnerships require a consistent balance between the value each party derives from the relationship. Over time, it may be necessary to create new ideas and benefits if commitment is flagging on one side.
